

FCC Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) Support

The Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP), administered by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), provides eligible low-income households with a $30 monthly subsidy for broadband service. School districts may request any combination of the below options provided by the Georgia Department of Education (GaDOE) and conducted by CTC Technology & Energy (CTC) to promote ACP enrollment for students and their families.

Parental Outreach

CTC's call center will call eligible families to inform them about the ACP, encourage sign up, and facilitate the application process.

ACP Support Hotline

Interested families can contact an ACP Support Hotline during normal business hours for information about the ACP or for application assistance.

School District Parental Outreach

School districts will conduct ACP outreach to their families.

ACP Training Workshop for School District Staff

CTC will hold a virtual ACP training workshop for school district staff.

ACP Workshop for Families

CTC will hold a virtual ACP workshop for school district families.

Third-party ACP Support Organization Research

CTC will conduct research to discover local organizations within a school district that are conducting ACP outreach and support and provide a list of these organizations and their programs.
